Making a Difference

REGINA M. BENJAMIN, 18th Surgeon General of the United States, USA

Regina Benjamin, MD, MBA is the Founder and CEO of BayouClinic, Inc., as well as the NOLA.com/Times Picayune Endowed Chair of Public Health Sciences at Xavier University of Louisiana, and from 2009-2013, served as the United States 18th Surgeon General. She specializes in prevention policies and health promotion among individuals as well as large populations, especially concerning obesity, childhood obesity, and children's health. She has special interest in rural health care, health disparities among socio-economic groups, suicide, violence, and mental health.

Dr. Benjamin is former associate dean for Rural Health at the University of South Alabama College of Medicine in Mobile and past chair of the Federation of State Medical Boards of the United States. In 1995, she was the first physician under age 40 and the first African-American woman to be elected to the American Medical Association Board of Trustees.

How to Achieve Sustainable Food Production?

Su-May Yu, Academia Sinica, Taipei, Taiwan

Dr. Su-May Yu is a molecular plant biologist who is working to reduce world hunger by improving rice yields. Her research activities are primarily focused on sugar, nutrient and O₂ deficiency signaling and regulation in plants, rice functional genomics and biotechnology. She is a distinguished research fellow in Institute of Molecular Biology, Academia Sinica. According to Taiwan's CTimes, Su-May's work in rice genomics has earned her the title: "Godmother of Paddy Rice." For over 20 years she has been working with paddy rice gene transfers, looking for specific genes to help rice cope with environmental conditions like poor soil, drought, and temperature fluctuations. Dr. Yu has filed over 20 international patents on these fields and has also established

Rice Insertional Mutagenesis Database, which has decoded 60,000 genetic mutations that have raised rice yields by 40–50%.
